ITALIANS WON GAME.

Defeated The Williamstowns Saturday Afternoon By Score of 7 to 2.

About 100 people saw the Italian Athletic club base ball team defeat the Williamstown team on the Rangers' field Saturday afternoon by a score of 7 to 2. Bemis was the slab artist Williamstown and the Italians seemed to be able to connect with any thing that he put anywhere near the plate, smashing out seven lits in the first laning and making seven runs. Bemis was replaced by Lynde in the second inning and the Italians were unable to score again during the game.

Two-baggers seemed to be the order of the day, Nicorl, Cella and Mariana meeting the sphere for doubles, while Comolli trotted around to third on a rainbow over the center fielder's head, Scampini was in the box for the Italians and struck out 11 men. The score:

It Was Enten by Riparian Man Thousands of Years Ago. It was Dean Swift who remarked that "he was a bold man that first ate an oyster," but neither Dean Swift nor any other lover of good eating has been able to find records of any time, how ever ancient, when oysters were not eaten, while there is ample proof that thousands of years ago riparian man not only consumed these bivalves, but was very fond of them. Thus the with a touring car. Among the men killed are the editors of two newspapers.

The racing car left Paris yesterday morning. It is said that the dust over the road prevented the drivers from the road prevented the "kjockkenmoeddinger" or "kitchen refof Thor and Odin. There is, of course, an interesting tradition which relates barefooted along the shore of the sea. Suddenly he caught his foot in an oyster shell, which, as it instantly closed upon him, caused him so much pain that he seized a stone to dislodge the strange foe that clung to him so tenaclously. After accomplishing his pur pose he raised his hand, moist with the juice of the oyster, to his lips, with results that were so pleasing to his palate that he promptly proceeded to eat the entire bivalve. Thus, it is said, did man first discover the gustatory delights contained within an oyster shell, Hammond, who was born in Addion county, went to sea when about 21, and upon his return married Mary Ann at Albany. In 1896 they came to Orwell to reside.

In 1901 Mary Ann became dissatisfied with her Vermont bome and left the state. In February, 1902, Hammond brought a petition for divorce in Addison county court, obtaining service by publication, and in June 1903, the petition was granted. The following year he married Mary Degnan of Brooklyn in Jersey City. This wife now resides with him in Orwell.

In 1904, Mary Ann, who was then re-siding in New York, ignoring the Ver-mont decree of divorce, brought a petition there for separate support, to which Hammond pleaded his Vermont decree. The lower court failed to recognize the Vermont judgment. Hammond appealed and in March, 1905, the appellate division of the supreme court of New York reversed the judgment.

Mary Ann Hammond was the complainant as well as the principal witness before the grand jury which indicted her former husband on a charge of bigamy.

THE SACRED LOTUS.

There Are Pretty Legends of Song and Story About Its Fruit.

Concerning the rich fruit of the lotus, which grew luxuriantly in the Nile, many charming legends have been told. It was believed that it was so delightful that those who are of it would never leave the spot where it grew, but for it would abandon home and friends to spend their lives in a dream of serene delight. Homer, in the "Odyssey," mentions the lotus enters who lived on the northern coast of Africa and records their attempts to detain the followers of Ulysses by giving them the fruits of the lotus to eat, so that they should never wish to leave the spot where it grew,

The same poetical idea is known to the Arabs, who call it the "frait of destiny," which is to be eaten in paradise, and it is on this foundation that Tennyson built his charming poem of the "Lotus Enters." This mythical Jotus has been identified by several botunists with that Indigenous to Tunis, which is a thorny shrub, with berries of the size of an olive.

Mungo Park found a species of lotus in Central America bearing berries of a delicious taste, which, on being dried and pounded, made very wholesome and pleasant bread. The lotus fruit found in Tunis has a stimulating, almost intoxicating effect, and it is therefore probable that this plant furnished the foundation of the ancient legends.

The sacred lotus of the Egyptians was a fine aquatic plant, dedicated to Osiris and Isis and regarded in Egyptian delineations as signifying the crention of the world. Distinct from this lotus was that known as the blue lotus of the Nile, also a sacred plant. Both these species of lotus occur frequently as religious symbols and decorations in the temples.

Personal Recollections of a Dollar

I am a dollar. A little age worn, maybe, but still in circulation. I am proud of myself for being in circulation. I am no tomato can dollar-not I.

This town is only my adopted home, but I like it and hope to remain permanently. When I came out of the mint I was adopted into a town like this in another state. But after a time I was sent off to a big city, many miles away. I turned up in a Mail Order house. For several years I stayed in that city. Millionaires bought cigars with me. I didn't like that, for I believe in the plain people.

Finally a fraveling man brought me to this town and left me here. I were so glad to get back to a smaller town that I determined to make desperate efforts to stay.

One day a citizen of this town was about to send me back to that big city. I caught him looking over a Mail Order Catalogue. Suddenly I found my voice and said to him-he was a dentist, by the ways.

"Now, look here, doc. If you'll only let me stay in this town I'll circulate around and do you lots of good. You buy a big beefsteak with me, and the butcher will buy groceries, and the grocer will buy dry goods, and the dry goods me chant will pay his doctor's bill with me, and the doctor will spend me with a farmer for oats to feed his buggy horse, and the farmer will buy some fresh beef from the butcher, and the butcher will come around to you and get his tooth mended. In the long run, as you see, I'll be more useful to you here at home than if you'd send me away forever."

Doc said it was a mighty stiff argument. He hadn't looked at it in that light before. So he went and bought the big beefsteak, and I began to circulate around beme again. Now, just suppose all the other dollars that are sent to Chicago or some other big city were kept circulating right here at home. You could see this town grow.

HONEST, NOW-AIN'T | RIGHT?
